About

A beautiful explosion followed the horrible one. The entire nation, followed by the entire world, jumped to heal people, restore property, and boost morale.

Lebanon – the country – is indeed not alone, because Lebanon – the people – has shown, once more, that it deserves much better than the calamity that has been delivered to it.

This digest of losses, aid, and initiatives is intended to be used as a quick reference and provide an overall picture of the magnitude of losses, and the amplitude of the immediate popular and institutional reaction to it, both locally and internationally.

This report is an aggregate of information from various sources – including our own surveys. It provides a fair account of the extent of damage and relief effort, but is by no means comprehensive. The preliminary assessments were made in haste by authorities and other stakeholders. More is being uncovered every day. Aid and initiatives are still burgeoning, and it is hoped that such a report will serve as a catalyst for more.

Please keep us updated (digest@infopro.com.lb) with any information not contained in this report so we can share it with our community.
